A few minutes before 10 o'clock the acolytes, led by the censors and cross bearer, took their places in the improvised sanctuary. The invited and assisting clergy followed. The altar was covered with spotless linen and rich lace, and amid the palms and flowers numerous wax tapers were placed. When the candles prescribed for a solemn high mass had been lighted the President arrived. When the applause occasioned by the arrival of the Chief Executive had subsided the mass, the most sacred and solemn of all the ceremonles of the l'atholic church, the commencation of the death of Christ upon Caivary, began. Father McDonnell pointed out the significant of the Kyrle rendered by a mixed. of St. Patrick's church sang the Introit.
After the Kyrie, rendered by a mixed choir, the celebrant of the mass sang in a loud voice the "Gloria Excelsis." Then followed the gospel and the elo-quent discourse of the preacher, the Rev. Eugene de L. McDonnell, S. J., of Rev. Eugene de L. McDonnell, S. J., of St. Aloysius Church. The deep voice of the speaker penetrated to the outskirts of the vast crowd, who listened in silence to the stirring and eloquent eulogy of the nation's soldier dead.

When the sermon was finished the celebrant again took his place before the altar and the mass proceeded. The chalice was uncovered and the wine placed in it for consecration. After the singing of the Credo and the Offertory by the choir the most solemn part of the mass began. As the officiating priest lifted the chalice and host over the heads of the kneeling multitude at the elevation of the mass the notes of a bugle rang out three times in the silence.

Patriotic Hymns Sung.

The impressive service now rapidly approached its completion and after the ommunion, the celebrant, deacon, and subdeacon took their places before the altar while the whole vast assembly of men, woman, and children united in singing "Holy God," "America," and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Start of the Parade. With military promptness, the parade moved from Peace Monument along Pennsylvania avenue to the Ellipse.

Under escort of mounted officers of he Metropolitan Police Department, Major F. S. Hodson led the impressive parade, and to the martial airs of the Marine Band, 10,000 men marched to the first military field mass in the history of Washington.

Long before the last section of the parade had left the starting point, the Marine Band had entered the Ellipse. As far as the eye could see up Pennsylvania avenue there was a stream of undulating humanity and waving flags. Hundreds of people lined the course of the marching thousands.

Following the Marine Band were several hundred United Spanish War Veterans. Many of them were dressed in erans. Many of them were dressed in the gray trousers, with black stripes. They were followed by an attractively attired company of the Modern Wood-men of America. Next in line was a juvenile Zousve company and a com-pany of Woodmen of the World. Dinner of Graduates Sets "Tech" Precedent

The banquet of the class of 1911 of the McKinley Manual Training School has established a precedent in "Tech" that is likely to be a fixture of future school commencements. The feasting at Freund's, on Tenth street, last night, brought together the seventy members of the graduating class.

Principal G. E. Myers and F. C. Daniel, of the school faculty, with their wives, were the guests of honor. Loyalty to "Tech" and appreciation of the advantages that it has afforded them, were the dominant notes in the after-dinner speeches by the members of the
